Hi richard, sorry for the late reply. On my sick bed after catching a bug in the middle East. I have categorically told the team that I want you out of the deals and that the next shipment of product, any product should be booked as the conclusion of this transaction. That keeps our books correct and gets you your investment plus profit. You want it concluded and I certainly don't like being hassled on a friends and family deal where the guaranteed return is in excess of 30 percent. It's getting done, they have had a rocket and told to move. I hope you had a great holiday and speak soon. Back to bed for me, need to be fixed as I'm heading to Oman later next week. Take care Neil
